

The Angle

Volume 1970 | Issue 1

Article 2

1970

An Address to the Heart: A Triolet

James R. Hall Jr.
St. John Fisher University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://fisherpub.sjf.edu/angle>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Hall, James R. Jr. (1970) "An Address to the Heart: A Triolet," The Angle: Vol. 1970: Iss. 1, Article 2.
Available at: <https://fisherpub.sjf.edu/angle/vol1970/iss1/2>

This document is posted at <https://fisherpub.sjf.edu/angle/vol1970/iss1/2> and is brought to you for free and open access by Fisher Digital Publications at . For more information, please contact fisherpub@sjf.edu.

An Address to the Heart: A Triolet

Cover Page Footnote

Appeared in the issue: Winter 1969-70.

Hall: An Address to the Heart

Villanelle: The Speech of Silence

Homage to the Old French and Provençal

An Address to the Heart: A Triolet

When you make up your mind
Let me know,
Won't you? Lest I find
When you make up your mind
That Love---too often blind---
Is dumb as well. So...
When you make up your mind
Let me know?

Published by Fisher Digital Publications, 1970

Speak in the unspeaking way
(As silence speaks when words are through);
Say what only love can say.

Then why, O my poems, do you play
Lesser music? Go, learn of those who
Speak in the unspeaking way.

Behold His little ones. They--
Though their thoughts are light and words are few--
Say what only love can say.

Their lives are tongues that burn both day
And night. Let these speaking flames help you
Speak in the unspeaking way.

For He Who breathed upon the clay
Gave breath to all His children to
Say what only love can say.

O Word made Child, to you do I pray;
Let my life be a song sung true:
Speak in the unspeaking Way
Say what only Love can say.